
13. Data Sources about Culture

NATIONAL CENTRE FOR CULTURE AND RECREATION STATISTICS (NCCRS)

The NCCRS is the unit within the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) which provides a national focus on culture, recreation and leisure statistics. Its tasks involve the coordination and drawing together of results of statistical work from ABS and other sources, and the statistical analyses of relevant data. The NCCRS is also involved in the development and the conduct of new and existing collections. Finally, NCCRS also has the role of the development and application of appropriate classifications and standards.

More information about the NCCRS is available from the Culture and Recreation theme page on the ABS website <www.abs.gov.au>. (Select 'Themes' from the menu along the top of the Home Page, then select 'Culture and Recreation'.)

A list of ABS publications containing culture and recreation data is available on the theme page, along with links to other arts and culture websites.
